

ANTHROPOLOGY

University of Northern Iowa College of Social and Behavioral Sciences

<https://csbs.uni.edu/sac/anthropology>

ABOUT THE MAJOR

Anthropology is the study of human societies and cultures and their development. Anthropologists examine all aspects of the human experience to identify, compare, and interpret patterns of human differences through four different fields of study: cultural, linguistic, archaeological, and physical. Students in this major receive a solid grounding in each area of anthropology through hands-on experience that explain why humans behave the way they do.

SAMPLE COURSEWORK

Intro to Cultural Anthropology	Archaeology of the Old World
Human Origins	Intro to Sociology
Language and Culture	Interpreting the Archaeological Record

POSSIBLE CAREERS *some titles may require further education

Diversity Officer	Translator	Public Service	Archeologist
Foreign Language Teacher	Public Health Specialist	Non-profit	Environmental Protection
Foreign Service Officer	Human Rights Attorney	Government Agency Specialist	Professor
Human Resources	Museum Curator	Forensic Specialist	Librarian

UNI GRADUATES: WHERE ARE THEY NOW?

- National Balloon Museum
- Applied EarthWorks, Inc.
- Boy Scouts of America
- Metcalf Archeology
- Seattle Children's
- GCA Services Group
- Nationwide
- Wells Fargo
- Tetra Tech
- UNI Museum
- AmeriCorps
- Wisconsin Historical Society
- Mary Washington Healthcare
- Minnesota Historical Society
- U.S. Bankruptcy Court
- The Dodo
- Xiphos Web Marketing LLC

SKILLS NEEDED

- Written communication
- Analytical skills
- Assessment
- Presentation skills
- Ability to work in groups
- Statistical and computing skills
- Organization
- Problem-solving skills
- Data interpretation

HOLLAND CODES

IRE